CLAIRVOYANT CONNECTION

Tuning into your question I have a sense that HE is a person of high energy. What I mean by that is that he is not someone who would sit in the corner playing computer games. He likes to be around people and works in real estate or personnel or some sort of sales position - people are around him and he loves it. I can see that you see him at least every day and that you work together. If he isn't a tradesman he is highly practical and likes to be out and about he likes sports and the outdoors.

HE is charismatic and what you like about him is he seems to notice things other people don't notice. What draws you to him is he notices you. He likes to talk and you like the way he fills the space so that he can talk and you can listen.

This is a man who is 'in the moment'. What I mean by that is that he will do whatever works for him at the time. This doesn't mean that he intentionally means to hurt anyone or that he has bad morals. More that he enjoys the moment and that he doesn't always think about the consequences of his actions. I feel as though he enjoys your friendship. You mentioned you feel an intense attraction to him, do not think that he doesn't feel that attraction in return or know that it is there. He knows it is there and he likes it. I don't believe he has thought about what it all means, he just likes the feeling - and unconsciously it feeds his ego so he thinks it's good.

I have a sense that he likes you a lot but that what happens with that is up to you. I am not sure if he was honest he would use the world love, but he is very fond of you. On the one hand, you could take a chance and tell him how you are feeling. If he is in a good place with his partner, you might find that he would deny any chemistry between you and shut you down. Or you might find that he would open up to you about his relationship which could open the door to an emotional affair. Because this man is so in the moment of how he feels at the time, it is hard to know how he might react.

I do not get the feeling that he would go as far as to cheat on his partner with you physically. I feel as though he would be more likely to have an emotional affair with you where you became far too close emotionally. He would excuse this by saying it isn't an affair because you aren't having sex. He may even deny there is an affair because often emotional affairs are 'unacknowledged' meaning they happen but nobody says what they are - and so they are easy to excuse as if they aren't happening. Which of course can lead to a lot of emotional pain.

I can see that the two of you have a great friendship and the potential to become very close because of the chemistry between you. The emotional affair or physical affair can provide an escape from anything that is troubling him and the same goes for you too. This can make these sorts of affairs highly addictive.

The danger here with this man is lack of boundaries. Because he is so in the moment he may well find himself being drawn closer and closer to you. If you don't have good boundaries in place you may find yourself being drawn into an emotional or physical affair. You need to guard yourself against this. Remember the emotional chemistry you are feeling he will be feeling it too.

You don't want to risk becoming the other woman, as you risk creating a situation where HE has the best of both worlds (being in a relationship and affair with you) and he doesn't have to make a decision. Having clear boundaries will ensure you have a great friendship and if the time is right and you feel right then a relationship will develop. As you said to me the time is not right now as he is with someone else.

In many ways, you are in a fabulous position of having a friendship with this man and having a chance to get to know him. You will then be able to see if he is worthy of your love and attention and the feelings you have for him before getting involved with him.

Remember the best relationships take time and often start with friendship - because ultimately relationships are friendships built over time with love and respect.

ASTROLOGICAL SYNASTRY

Astrological Synastry

YOU - Virgo element earth modality mutable

HIM - Leo element Fire modality Fixed

Word to describe your relationship include

ENERGY - FRICTION -DIFFERENCE

Your star signs are one sign apart. Or what is commonly known in astrology as inconjunct or semisextile. When astrological signs are one sign apart have no astrological traits in common and so they can stir up passion within you in opposites attract kind of way.

HIS sign is Leo

Strengths Creative, passionate, generous, warm-hearted, cheerful, humorous.

Weaknesses: Arrogant, stubborn, self-centered, lazy, inflexible.

Being Leo HE will be a natural born leader and the fire element of his sign will make him dramatic, creative and self-confident - and difficult to resist. Leo is a fixed sign so be prepared for him to be dependable but also stubborn to a fault and at his worst not able to see the needs of others beyond his own.

HER sign is Virgo

Strengths: Loyal, analytical, kind, hardworking, practical adaptable.

Weaknesses: Shyness, worry, overly critical of self and others, all work and no play.

Virgos are drawn to paying attention to the details in life and their love of life and nature makes them one of the most careful and thoughtful signs in the zodiac. You like to be grounded practical and well organised. As a mutable sign, you are able to adapt to many different situations with ease.

One of you is a fire sign and the other an earth sign and because of this you have a yin yang kind of interaction. One of you is flexible or mutable and the other is fixed or more stubborn. Often when we are attracted to someone we are attracted to them because they are our opposite. We are attracted to the qualities we don't have.

The friction you feel between you can create explosive sexual chemistry and can even lead to an obsession with each other. Where the problems can start in a relationship such as this is when each asks the other for something different in the relationship and isn't able to deliver.

I can see that if you allowed an emotional affair to develop and then felt the need to push for a relationship that you could be very badly hurt.

You may find this obsession with personal difference can lead you into a space of 'trying to work him out'. You need to be careful that he doesn't fill your head with thoughts about him - what he is thinking, feeling and doing. This 'over functioning' is not good for you and it can be so consuming that it can interfere with your life and most importantly stop you from thinking about the things you need to think about. Most importantly being in touch with yourself and your needs.

If there are some emotional games being played between you, and I sense there might be because of the chemistry you are picking up on. You need to be careful that you don't find yourself in a cycle of 'make-up break up' on a smaller scale. The big warning with this relationship combination is to make sure you have clear boundaries in place. This is important to keep yourself emotionally physically and psychologically safe.

The Queen Of Pentacles represents you. You are in a very good place at the moment maintaining a good balance between your working and home life. You have created an abundant life for yourself and want to protect that. The Nine Of Cups tells me you have reached a point in your life where you feel as though you have created everything you need career-wise. Although your mind can be overactive with thoughts about what you want next in your life - particularly around family and children. You are beginning to realise that career isn't everything and you want to find a life partner. But your life experience has taught you that this has to be the right person and this is what has made you reach out to me for guidance.

The Knight Of Pentacles represents your past. You have worked very hard to create the security you have now. Other people might find you boring because you have been so sensible. But, security is very important to you and you know that others envy what you have been able to achieve for yourself. However, you have struggled with your relationship and these have not come as easily to you as your career. However, you have learned a lot from those experiences and definitely know what is important to you.

The Hierophant is calling you to notice the conventional boundaries that you know you need to put in place with HIM. You need to tune into spirit and listen to your intuition. If it is telling you to step back and slow down and take things the more conventional way then listen and know that you do know the answers to how you need to approach this situation. No matter how tempting it might be to try and make a relationship out of what is happening right now.

The Queen Of Swords is reminding you to speak your truth and that cold hard logic is very important in decision making. I suspect there are times when you feel quite emotional because of your feelings for HIM. You need to cut through that emotion and stay true to yourself. I sense that in the coming months there may be some temptation in this relationship and you need to be sure to stick to your resolve to protect yourself. Remember HE is in the moment and he will let you take the lead as to where this relationship goes. He may even be of the opinion that as long as the relationship isn't physical it isn't cheating. Emotional affairs can be extremely painful and you need to make sure you are careful to protect yourself from that sort of deep connection without a commitment from him.

The Nine Of swords is the nightmare card. It is the card of trauma and the bad dreams that keep us up at night. This tells me that HE is probably in your head way too much. The problem with this is it makes you vulnerable to his every move, and your happiness becomes dependant upon what he does. Don't forget you have worked very hard to get yourself into the situation you are now in where you have personal strength and independence. Don't allow this chemistry between you to derail you. Remember every moment you spend worrying about him takes you away from being in the present moment and available to anyone else who might come along for you. It also takes you away from being available for yourself and mindful about your life right now. An important question you might like to ask yourself is "Who does HE remind me of?" and "Is something about HIM that is causing me to be triggered, or even drawn back into a toxic relationship pattern."

The Wheel Of Fortune is advising you that life can change in an instant. You need to go with what is happening right now knowing that if things are meant to be they will happen. Trust in Karma and doing what is right for you and others in the caring way that is you. Know that if you and this man are meant to be together that life and circumstances will make that happen and that it is way beyond anything you can control.

The Page Of Cups is calling you to look at things from a different perspective. Open up your mind so you are alert to any new opportunities that come your way. If HE is front and centre in your life right now, know that now is not your time and recognise that new opportunities are just around the corner. You will miss them if you are not mindful and present, and your mind is filled with someone else.

Your greatest fear in your life is losing the security and balance you have set up for yourself. The Two Of Pentacles is about that juggling act and precarious balance between career, money, love and health. You are absolutely right to be worried about creating pain and disappointment in your life. At the end of this reading, I will have some links to some strategies for you to manage yourself and bring yourself back into equilibrium.

The outcome of this situation with this man is in your hands. The King Of Wands is a natural born leader and this means you need to take the lead in this friendship. Know that whatever you decide to do HE will go along with it. At this stage he feels the energetic connection between you - know that for sure. However, I do not feel he is in a headspace to leave his current relationship at this time. This means you need to be firm in your resolve regarding your boundaries with him. Be mindful of how much time you spend texting and talking. Emotional affairs can happen so slowly and before you know it you are in danger of being very hurt. You know what you need to do and the King of Wands is telling you that you have the strength to do it.

If you look at the cards in your reading you will see 5 of the 10 cards are court cards. This indicates that moving forward you are going to be making lots of new connections with other people. That others may well be there for you to give you support - and that some things can be controlled and some things can't. Be careful that you don't lose yourself in someone else's destiny and that you listen to yourself first.
